

From The Author

This list is most likely not perfect, nor complete. But I hope it helps my fans navigate through the Universe I have created. Some of the characters from more recent books have not been added to the lists simply to conserve time and my energy.

By going to my website at

<http://www.authorgahauser.com/>

You should be able to see the blurbs in their entirety and that will help you continue your reading pleasure. I have tried my best to bring you joy and pleasure and I hope in the end, I have.

Happy Reading.

MARK ANTONIOUS RICHFIELD

Mark was born in England to an English mother, Leslie and an American military father, Milt. The family relocated to Paradise, California when Mark was very young. He is an only child. Milt Richfield is the owner of Richfield International, a business worth billions. The estate in Paradise includes a manor house, stables, pool, and servants.

With his long brown hair and bright green eyes, Mark's fabulous sex appeal and good looks have always been a burden and a blessing to him. Called soft and a fag by his father, overprotected by his mother, Mark withstood an abusive childhood and fought with his sexuality all his adolescent life.

He made several attempts at straight relationships but failed. Originally graduating from Stanford University, (where he met Jack Larsen) with a degree in architecture, Mark works at Parsons and Company selling advertising and does modeling on the side. (Later becoming Dangereux Cologne's top model)

He met the love of his life, Steven Jay Miller on a business retreat in New Mexico and resides with him Bel Air, California.

JACK CHARLES LARSEN

Big, brawny blue-eyed, blond, Jack is originally from Florida and went to college at Stanford where he met Mark Richfield while playing baseball. Jack has always known he was gay, but didn't come out until after college. Jack graduated with a degree in law, drives a maroon Jaguar and is madly in love with Mark.

The two men shared a small apartment off campus, then a house together, as roommates only, until Mark met Steve Miller.

While working in law, Jack met a client, Adam Lewis, who needed his services. Jack and Adam began a relationship and currently live together in Malibu. Jack is a leader in fighting for gay rights.

STEVEN JAY MILLER

All American, great looking, macho man, Steve Miller is the son of an LAPD cop and followed in his dad, Sgt. Dick Miller's, footsteps into the police service. Steve fell head over heels for the gorgeous African American defense attorney, Sonja Knight, but the affair eventually fizzled out.

After serving the city of Los Angeles for ten years, Steve gave up being a patrol officer and began working at Parsons and Company selling advertising. It was while he was toiling towards a job promotion that he at first fought, then made love to, Mark Richfield at a business retreat. Steve has met his soul mate in Mark and is loyal, steadfast and true to that love, though at times he is completely overindulgent when it comes to giving into Mark's desires.

ADAM MICHAEL LEWIS

Sophisticated hotshot Hollywood agent, Adam Lewis began his career working for a fiend named Jack Turner. Though he despised it, Adam turned a blind eye to Turner's 'couch practices' until one day it landed both of them in hot water. That's when Adam sought the services of Jack Larsen, attorney at law.

Adam owns a fabulous house on the beach in Malibu where he and Jack reside together.

DETECTIVE/SERGEANT/SWAT LIEUTENANT/CAPTAIN BILLY SHARPE

Billy worked as a detective for the Santa Monica police department when a report crossed his desk that would alter his life forever. Seeing the heartthrob sex star of his favorite 'art house' films of the Eighties, Billy couldn't believe his luck when he gets an opportunity to meet Angel Loveday, face to face.

A powerhouse of a man, a hero and a loyal friend, Billy went above and beyond the call of duty to save his lover. After his transfer to the LAPD and his promotion to SWAT Lieutenant, Billy had the opportunity to save one of Angel's good friends as well.

An officer and a gentleman, Billy Sharpe is the man you call when you want to get the job done right the first time.

EWAN P. GALLAGHER

Adorable young Ewan Gallagher was born and raised in Carlisle, England and worked in the little theater, the Red-Green Room. His aspirations to make it big in Hollywood were always on the forefront on Ewan's mind. He had one ambition in life, to become famous at any cost.

One evening after rehearsals he carelessly raced across a dark rainy street and was hit by a car. That night he met the love of his life, Dr. Jason Phillips, and his entire world changed. Ewan did make it to Hollywood, but all the fame and fortune weren't what he had anticipated. And the price he paid to get the starring role in Murphy's Hero, was too dear to have paid.

DAVID THORNTON

David is a very hard working divorced dad who has sacrificed his life for his family. When that wasn't good enough for his badgering wife, he was left on his own and only was able to see his two children part time.

As the building owner and senior partner of a prestigious law firm, David decides on a little urban renewal and gets the old vintage high-rise a facelift. When a stunning young topless male is caught gazing into David's office window from a scaffolding six floors above ground, David sets eyes on Lyle Wilson for the first time, and is knocked over by his gorgeous sex appeal and assertive manner. David's life went from boring to dynamic from that moment on.

JEFF A. CHANDLER

A transfer from the Seattle Police Department, Jeff couldn't believe his luck when he was assigned the same car as the big brawny handsome blond, Mickey Stanton. It didn't take long for the two men to get crazy together, in uniform, on duty. Jeff loved the hard violence of their coupling as much as Mickey did. It made them the perfect team, in and out of the bedroom.

Books Jeff appears in:

Top Men

HARRY AND CLYDE CALLAHAN

The Callahan brothers are ten years apart in age, and are adopted siblings. Harry is the younger brother to Clyde, and as a youth turned to Clyde for all his problems and support. Clyde became over-protective of Harry and defended him throughout his young life. The two brothers began sharing men and soon it became their regular arrangement until Harry met Jean Du Lac, who stopped into Harry's tattoo shop, Down And Dirty's Tats, for a tattoo. Clyde works as an erotic dancer and volunteer firefighter, and aspires to be a gay porn star.

POSSIBLE CHRONOLOGICAL READING ORDER FOR BOOKS

In Mark and Sharon we meet Mark Richfield for the first time. Mark has an attempt at a relationship with Sharon Tice in this first book, which also introduces the hunky blond attorney, Jack Larsen.

In Miller's Tale, we meet the gorgeous LAPD cop, Steve Miller, who also tries to begin a straight relationship with beautiful African American lawyer, Sonja Knight.

In Capital Games, Mark Richfield and Steve Miller collide, literally on a business retreat. And all hell breaks loose in their personal lives.

In When Adam Met Jack, we see the fall out on Jack Larsen, when his roommate, Mark Richfield falls for Steve. Jack has loved Mark since college and is heartbroken. But Jack meets Adam Lewis, a hot shot Hollywood agent.

We first meet Adam Lewis in For Love and Money, (the sequel to The Physician and the Actor) and see the fiend Jack Turner he works with, who plays an important role in When Adam Met Jack.

In Capital Games Steve has a brief encounter with ex-soft porn star Angel Loveday. Angel Loveday is the main character in Love you, Loveday.

In the new Action series, Book 1 & 2 Acting Naughty and Playing Dirty need to be read in that order. The two actors involved and Carl Bronson and Keith O'Leary, meet and seduce the luscious Mark Richfield. The rest of the series should be read in this order; Book 3 Getting it in the End, followed by Top Men, of the Heroes Series, then Book 4 Behaving Badly, and then, Book 5 Dripping Hot, read after Double Trouble.

In Getting it in the End, we finally hear Mark's side of the story, and why he is who he is.

The Guide to Hauser's Erotic Universe

In Behaving Badly, Mark finds out he has a son, who is as gorgeous as he is, and big trouble!

In Dripping Hot, we discover how much Mark and Steve's friends mean to them.

Packing Heat continues the saga of Mark's trials with growing old and his promiscuous son Alex.

Being Screwed is about Alex's chance at stardom.

Got Men? Includes visits from Keith and Carl, and Mark makes a sizzling appearance.

Something Sexy continues the saga of Mark getting into BDSM with his lovers and about an illicit affair Alexander begins

Going Wild is about Carl and Keith possibly losing their acting jobs, and of Alexander continuing his love for an older man. Mark meets Colt St. John for a BDSM session.

Having it All! is the continuation of Alex and Billy's love affair and Mark's dabbling into BDSM with his lovers.

In my Heroes Series, Book 3, my LAPD cops in Top Men, meet up with Mark and Steve on a call and become friends. The Heroes Series should be read in order, Man to Man, Two in Two out, and Top Men, because the characters are introduced in each previous book.

In Going Deep we meet Angel Loveday once again, who is there to offer sage advice.

In Double Trouble, the Rothschild twins both end up working for Parsons and Company, the same advertising firm that employs Mark Richfield and Steve Miller.

The Guide to Hauser's Erotic Universe

All Man should be read after Leather Boys because both of the main characters in Leather Boys play a part in All Man.

The Kiss should be read before Murphy's Hero so you know who Ian Sullivan and Scott Epstein are when they appear. And for that matter, The Kiss precedes The Wedding Planner as well as The Vampire and the Man-Eater for Claire's role in both.

For the Men in Motion Series, only Mile High and Driving Hard are connected so Cruising and Leather Boys can be read in any order.

It Takes a Man includes guest appearances from FBI agent Robbie Taylor and Dave Harris and should be read after Naked Dragon.

Down and Dirty should be read before The Last Hard Man and Taking Ryan.

Lancelot in Love should be read before The Crush and Midnight in London.

Happy Endings should be read before Living Dangerously.

The rest of the Action! Series can be read from here on.

Side notes and trivia;

In To Have and To Hostage, Michael's mother's first name and grave dates, (month and day, not the years) were those of my mother's name, birth and death.

I've been writing about Mark and Jack since 1990 and in my first book, 'A Man's Best Friend' Mark was in the middle of a love triangle between Jack and Sharon. 'A Man's Best Friend' is one of the scripts Ewan Gallagher reads in For Love and Money.

Murphy's Hero began was a screenplay I wrote and was reworked into a full length novel based on a 'comic book' style superhero.

In Giving up the Ghost, Ryan's 'Anguish Series' red painting was named after one of my favorite songs by Peter Gabriel, Red Rain. The month and date of birth on Evan Oliver's tombstone is mine.

Angel Loveday's character in Love you, Loveday was inspired by Joe Dellasandro, whom I absolutely adore, from Andy Warhol's movies.

In the Sizzle on All Romance eBooks Summer love, based on the characters of The Boy Next Door, Zach and Brandon skinny dip at Memorial Pool at night, diving off the 'raft' in the deep end. This was based on a true story from my youth.

Some of the situations involving the police in Top Men were crimes I was actually involved in, and were not fiction. (Not to mention I had the hottest partner on the planet)

The pub in Murphy's Hero The Founder's Arms, was one of my favorite hang outs along the river Thames. The chocolate stout was Young's Chocolate Stout.

The story about Mark Richfield performing as Eliza Doolittle in My Fair Lady, was explained in detail in a book I wrote called All's Fair, which has never been published.

Mark's beloved sports car, the TVR is my all time favorite automobile.

The Guide to Hauser's Erotic Universe

When I first conceived of Mark Antonious deMontford's story it was originally written into two separate books. In the first one, Francesco Cavella was killed by his brother Guido. In the sequel Mark returned to Italy to avenge his lover's death, killing Guido and exposing himself as the illegitimate son of Mark's Venetian father, Marc Antonious Caeserni. Mark then returned to London and lived with Baron Abel. But this was rewritten into a love story as it is now.

My inspiration for Acting Naughty and Playing Dirty came from Queer as Folk's Michael and Brian.

The surfer dude pizza boy in Going Deep, 'Vic', shows up in all of the Heroes Series.

The short story collection, In The Dark, includes Pete Harrison, a character from Double Trouble. His character is in one of the seven shorts and he appears in a full length novel.

And the book Calling Dr. Love is based on two of the characters in In The Dark that were caught in the Nordstrom's dressing room at the mall. Included with the In The Dark series is What Should Never Be, more short stories about my character's deepest taboo fantasies, and as you read them, hopefully you will agree they are acts so deviant that that they should never be.

In Lancelot in Love, I used my own memories of the bungalow colonies of upstate New York, which I visited as a kid, including Woodstock, NY

Living Dangerously was written because so many fans wanted to know Brandon's story after reading Happy Endings. Delanie 'Dexter' Desmond's character, is based on a real person. Some of Brandon's co-worker's names are Aaron and Zak, the names of two guys from a ghost-hunter's show I like!
